

CITY GOVERNMENT.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN—JOHN J. MURPHY OBOREN PRINCIPAL ASSESSOR IN CONCURRENCE—THE PUBLIC HEALTH, ETC.

The regular session of the Board of Aldermen was held yesterday, Alderman Whitten in the chair.

Petitions of Louis Prang et al., for better fire protection in that part of the Highlands known as Norfolk Hill; of Thomas Gogole and others, for a sewer in East and West Ninth streets; of Edwin M. White, for a sewer in East Fifth, between it and I streets; of John J. Keefe et al., for the use of Faneuil Hall on the evening of March 4; of E. Dev. de et al., that Canterbury street, between Hyde Park avenue and Neponset avenue, be put in order for public travel; of Pratt & Babb and fifty-two others, that Fulton street be paved with square granite blocks; of J. W. Hollis et al., that a bridge be placed over the grade crossing at Cambridge street, Brighton.

The Board concurred with the Common Council in sending back to the mayor the nominations of A. Shuman as trustee of the City Hospital and William H. Whitmore as trustee of the Public Library.

The Board passed an order requiring that all debates on water rates should be paid by the treasurer instead of by the water registrar, as provided by the Common Council. The Board also concurred with the Council in the amendment to the order for the city solicitor, as well as the corporation counsel, to appear before the Supreme Court and favor the petition for the appointment of commissioners to revise the water rates.

Aldermen Allen and Mullane were joined to the committee on so much of the mayor's address as relates to the main drainage works and sewer improvements.

The Committee on the Division of the City into thirty-six wards reported that no further action was necessary, as the matter was already before the Legislature. Accepted.

The Sinking Fund Commissioners reported that the total amount required for municipal indebtedness during the next financial year was $643,068.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported that no action was necessary on the request of the Civil Service Commission that rooms be provided for the examination of applicants in Boston, the corporation counsel having given an opinion that the city was not obliged to furnish quarters.

Leave to withdraw was reported on the petition of E. D. Sohier et al., that one or more elevators be placed in the present Court House.

Alderman Curtis offered an ordinance, which was laid over for one week, providing for a "city accountant," who shall examine all books and accounts and receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the City Council.

Elections. Corporation Counsel—Edward P. Nettleton, in non-concurrence, he receiving 9 votes to 3 for Oliver Stevens.

Principal Assessor—John J. Murphy in concurrence, he receiving 7 votes, to 5 for Dennis H. Morrissey.

Director of East Boston Ferries—John W. Frazer, in non-concurrence, he receiving 7 votes, to 4 for William A. Foss and 1 blank.

Director for Public Institutions—Alderman Fernand, in non-concurrence, and Councilman James H. Gallagher in non-concurrence.

Weighter and Inspector of lighters—Edward Hughes, in non-concurrence, in place of John M. Casey, chosen by the Common Council.

Trustees of City Hospital—Alderman Cutler and Councilman Edward J. Hathorne, in concurrence.

Superintendent of sewers—A ballot resulted as follows:

There being no choice, the matter was laid over for one week on motion of Alderman Curtis.

Directors for public institutions—Charles F. Baker, Otis Eddy and Patrick H. Farron.

The Board of Health submitted a communication calling attention to the necessity of some action on the part of the City Council toward providing a suitable place for the isolation of diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles, which are contagious diseases. During the past ten years the deaths from these causes have amounted to 703, while in the same period the deaths from small pox, yellow fever and typhus fever, only amounted to twenty-eight. The board suggested that an act could be lent to the City Hospital to provide the desired accommodations, and an order

ART NOTES.

MR. TWACHTMAN'S LANDSCAPES.

Latest of all Mr. Chase's unique acquisitions is a group of a score of oil sketches by a young American by the name of Twachtman, born in Cincinnati, that city so prolific of originality, and a student, first at Munich, later and at present in Paris. Many of them are painted in any way, carelessly, recklessly, savagely, almost; on a piece of common cloth nailed on a board, on a rough wood panel, anything; canvas or paper covered thinly, the original surface often showing through with brilliant effect. Absolute carelessness of technique, instead almost bravado and heedlessness; but never wilful eccentricity and affectation of impudence, for the catching of admiring wonder. For if one almost thinks, after looking at No. 11, that there is a certain delight in the artist at administering an aesthetic shock, a glance at the picture beside it, No. 2, discloses such marvellous delicacy of color, such endless variety of almost imperceptible shades, such truth of air and distance, and more than all, of effect, optical as well as mental, that one feels at once that fundamentally the painter is quite right and sure, and that in such examples as this last, the large "French Garden" and the pictures numbered 12 and 14, the painter is seen for himself rather than in the dashing No. 11, No. 3 or No. 7.

Mr. Twachtman has two strong and more than admirable qualities—sensitiveness to poetic impression and a feeling for the most subtle and varying color; the two qualities absolutely indispensable in a true painter of landscape. Naturally then it would seem that the artist is a true landscape painter, and he certainly is. With greater tenderness and delicacy of handling he would be incomparable; as it is he is undeniably a sympathetic and poetic as any painter we have, while his grasp of entire effects, his knowledge of the essential nature of things, and his power of rendering atmosphere, distances, and of suggesting by a swift, bold dash some detail of far distance, are qualities of the most singular perfection. No less wonderful is his feeling for modulations of color. In the most important of the exhibited pictures there is no position of flat color; all is eroded and elaborated with a result that is triumphant. For example of all that is good in Mr. Twachtman's work, study the picture numbered 1. It is a wonderful composition of minutely delicate hues, infinite and inimitable. What seems at first sight a space of pure and singularly pleasant color, proves to be a study in numberless tints—a fact which explains its quality of singular pleasure. As an example, take that cool patch of blue-green shadow low in the right corner of the picture; it is an elaborate bit of color composition, divided by the whole diameter of existence from the ordinary blotch of plain color. Equally good is the suggested detail, the bright-pink roses, the fluffy masses of cream-white flowers, the thick grass, the plummy tops of the trees, the distant abbey of pale yellow-gray stone; with a quick, shapeless touch of color is rendered a blossom with peculiar truth of effect.

It is this quality which is most expressive of the actual power of the painter. A first impression is that the picture is painted with extraordinary dash and rapidity, and so it is, but each touch tells, its position is known and calculated for, but however long the painter may have pondered over the touch, when it is to be made it is made at once, dexterously, with a freedom and dash that is delightful, no halting, no hesitancy. What often seems a thoughtless and careless dash of paint proves on further examination to be perfect, and unsusceptible of any change. And as in detail this "French Garden" is wholly good, and good in execution also, unlike so many of the others—it is no less admirable when taken in mass. Apart from the personal qualities which are so strong, the picture, as a picture, is unusually good. The composition is without fault, the harmony perfect, and the accent of the few slender trees in the centre is masterly. The figure seems rather

A communication was received from the prefect of the Seine, France, transmitting certain reports and requesting copies of the reports of the Railroad Commissioners and of the Board of Health, Lunacy and Charity. Mr. Frye offered an order, which was adopted, that the Senate shall be declared adjourned daily whenever in session, at 4.45 P. M. Mr. Sanderson for the Committee on Agriculture, reported a bill to prevent the willful defacing and misuse of milk cans. Mr. Scott, for the Committee on the Judiciary, reported that the bill giving the defendant the closing argument in criminal trials ought not to pass. Resolutions relative to the immigration of the defective classes adopted by the association of medical superintendents of American institutions for the insane were read and referred to the Committee on Public Charitable Institutions.

EMBEZZLEMENTS.

Mr. Cogswell, for the Committee on the Judiciary, reported a bill to amend section 47 of chapter 203 of the Public Statutes, concerning embezzlements by brokers, commission merchants and agents, so as to read as follows: "Any agent, broker or servant who receives in any manner any money for goods sold on commission, or any goods to sell or deliver to another on commission, and who, not being the absolute owner thereof, embezzles or fraudulently converts to his own use, with the intention to use or embezzle, takes, secretes or otherwise disposes of or fraudulently withholds, appropriates, lends, invades or otherwise fraudulently uses or applies any such goods, money or substitutes for money received by him as such agent, broker or servant, contrary to the instructions or without the consent of the company or person for or on account of whom the same was received by him, shall be deemed guilty of simple larceny, and convictions therefor may be held in any county where demand has been made for the same by any party duly authorized to demand and receive the same; but nothing herein shall be construed to compel a demand when demand is not necessary by law."

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

Rejected—Bill concerning the eligibility of officers of a City Government.

Engrossed—Bill to authorize the trustees of the Trinity Church in Bridgewater to transfer its property to the trustees of donations to the Protestant Episcopal Church, and to dissolve said first-named corporation; bill to provide for the service of processes in favor of or against sheriff; bill to authorize the General Charitable Society of Newburyport to hold additional real and personal estate; bill in relation to commissioners to take acknowledgments of deeds in foreign countries.

Accepted—Report of the Committee on Towns (leave to withdraw) on the petition of M. W. Fisher and others for a division of the town of Medway into three corporate and distinct towns; report of the Committee on Taxation (inexpedient to legislate), on an order relative to taxing athletic exhibitions where entrance fees are required; report of the Committee on the Judiciary (inexpedient to legislate), on an order relative to the expediency of such legislation as will enable the County Commissioners of the County of Hampden to employ one of their own number as superintendent of construction of the new jail and House of Correction provided for by chapter 243 of the acts of 1884, and to fix the compensation of said superintendent; report of the Committee on the Judiciary (inexpedient to legislate), on an order relative to amending the law in matter of pleadings in actions against counties, cities and towns; report of the Committee on the Judiciary (inexpedient to legislate), on an order relative to amending section 12 of chapter 203 of the Public Statutes, in the matter of contracts made by certain elected officers.

The Senate refused to take from the table the resolutions relative to placing Ulysses S. Grant on the retired list of the army with the rank of general.

IN THE HOUSE.

In the House, remonstrances were presented from H. B. Hyde and others against any amendment to the charter of Springfield, except to provide that each ward shall be represented by a citizen thereof. The Judiciary Committee reported inexpedient to legislate in regard to the conditional sale of personal property.

The Board of Health submitted a communication calling attention to the necessity of some action on the part of the City Council toward providing a suitable place for the isolation of diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles, which are contagious diseases. During the past ten years the deaths from these causes have amounted to 7073, while in the same period the deaths from small pox, yellow fever and typhus fever only amounted to twenty-eight. The board suggested that an annex could be built to the City Hospital to provide the desired accommodations, and an order offered by Aldermen Cutter for the building of such an annex was referred to the Committee on the City Hospital. The Board of Health also suggested that a special loan be made for sewers in section 2 of the city not properly drained. Referred to the Committee on Health.

It was ordered that warrants be issued for a special election for senator in the third Suffolk district on March 3, 1885, the polls to be kept open from 7 A. M. to 4 P. M.

The order for the mayor to appoint a commission to build the new public library was referred to the Committee on Public Library. Adjourned.

The Catholic Club of Boston

Held its first regular banquet at the Quincy House last evening. A reception of the members and invited guests was held before the banquet, at which the president, Mr. Thomas H. Murray presided. Representative P. D. Dyer, Rev. P. A. McKenna of Hudson, Edward J. Butler of Arlington, P. J. Riley and Dr. Charles D. McCarthy of Malden, John Hurley of Templeton, Rev. M. F. McDonnell of Woburn, and Mr. Cummings, secretary of the Webster Historical Society, occupied chairs of honor. After a welcome by President Murray, who explained the purposes of the club, and spoke of its rapid growth during the three months of its existence, Mr. Nathaniel Taylor, Mayor O'Brien's private secretary, responded on behalf of his honor. Rev. Father McKenna spoke of the great influence that had been exerted upon the world's history by clubs and social organizations. The possibilities of a club of this kind, he thought, were very great, especially because it is a Catholic club, and such organizations always aim for the greatest good to all, and not for the greatest good to the greatest number. He hoped that this club would have some special work in view with which it might identify itself, and thus prove an incentive to other clubs to be formed in Boston. Mr. Thomas F. Doherty spoke of the success of Catholic young men in business in this city, and the necessity for perseverance if they wished to reach the goal of their ambition. Mr. Thomas Riley responded for the bar, and spoke of the advantages of clubs in gathering together gentlemen, who have thus an opportunity for an interchange of thoughts and opinions. Representative Dyer said that there was no nobility in Massachusetts except the nobility of achievement; and that no matter what line of duty any young man may start out to follow, if he is honest and earnest in his intentions, there is no man where he will receive so much encouragement as in this city. He hoped that among her many children Massachusetts may look upon the Catholic Club as the very best. Other addresses were made by Dr. McCarthy of Malden, James Cox, editor of the Cambridge Press, James B. Hand of Brookline and T. F. Hyron of the Lowell Democrat. The company during the evening was favored with a song by Mr. P. Donahoe and a recitation by Mr. William F. Kenney, one of the vice presidents of the club.

Letters of regret, with the best wishes for the success of the club, were received from Rev. John F. Bodine, chancellor archdiocese of Boston, and Rev. John J. Connelley, archbishop of Hartford.

the exhibited pictures there is no position of flat color; all is graded and elaborated with a result that is triumphant. For example of all that is good in Mr. Twachtman's work, study the picture numbered 1. It is a wonderful composition of minutely delicate hues, infinite and imitable. What seems at first sight a space of pure and singularly pleasant color, proves to be a study in numberless tints—a fact which explains its quality of singular pleasure. As an example, take that cool patch of blue-green shadow low in the right corner of the picture; it is an elaborate bit of color composition, divided by the whole diameter of existence from the ordinary blotch of plain color. Equally good is the suggested detail, the bright-pink roses, the duffy masses of cream-white flowers, the thick grass, the plummy tops of the trees, the distant abbey of pale yellow-gray stone; with a quick, shapeless touch of color is rendered a blossom with peculiar truth of effect.

It is this quality which is most expressive of the actual power of the painter. A first impression is that the picture is painted with extraordinary dash and rapidity, and so it is, but each touch tells, its position is known and calculated for, but however long the painter may have pondered over the touch, when it is to be made it is made at once, dexterously, with a freedom and dash that is delightful, no halting, no hesitancy. What often seems a thoughtless and careless dash of paint proves on further examination to be perfect, and unsusceptible of any change. And as in detail this "French Garden" is wholly good,—and good in execution also, unlike so many of the others—it is no less admirable when taken in mass. Apart from the personal qualities which are so strong, the picture, as a picture, is unusually good. The composition is without fault, the harmony perfect, and the accent of the few slender trees in the centre is masterly. The figure seems rather to jar a little. In point of effect, there is not a picture in the gallery which is not more than good.

The tone of the pictures is delicious, but there seems almost a lack of variety in point of color; variety in shade and tints there is, unlimited, but beyond the pale, fair greens and grays and blues, the painter seldom goes, unfortunately perhaps. In the little 18 there is a refreshing change, and in a measure also in the No. 17. This last is a piece of earlier work, and showing too much of Munich to be absolutely good. But the life and originality are there as in every other. It is easy to sum up Mr. Twachtman's qualities as displayed in these pictures, first of all being true and sensitive poetic power, then a quick grasp of entire effects, consciousness of actual relations, and a delicate feeling for subtle shades of color. His technical strength consisting of great decision and ease of work, and a knowledge of just the right position of detail to be shown as suggested. On the other hand, seeming or affected lack of form, a singular bluntness in perception of the shades of red, and a method of handling which is so very secondary a consideration to the painter that it not seldom becomes slovenly in the extreme. So bad, indeed, is Mr. Twachtman's technique that it is sometimes unpardonable, and only the supreme beauty of the idea saves the picture from condemnation. Happily, however, there is little of this brutality in the most recent work, and one is led to hope that it is definitely abandoned, the more loving work of the "Church at Argues" being adopted instead as a technical system. With recognition of the value of technical excellence, there seems no reason why Mr. Twachtman should not hold a high and unique position among American painters of landscape.

Polo.

At Waltham, last evening, the home team defeated the Salem club, three goals to one, in 30m 22s. This is the first game the Salem men have played since the adoption of the rule prohibiting running on the toes, and the way in which the Waltham club outplayed them last night indicated that this tricky running had been their strongest point.

The Peabody club was defeated last night at Gloucester, by the home team, three straight goals in 11m 33s.

At Haverhill last evening the Globe club defeated the Woburn club three straight goals in 20m 10s.

At Malden, last evening, the home team was defeated, three straight goals, by the Paris Club

IN THE HOUSE.

In the House, remonstrances were presented from H. S. Hyde and others against any amendment to the charter of Springfield, except to provide that each ward shall be represented by a citizen thereof. The Judiciary Committee reported inexpedient to legislate in regard to the conditional sale of personal property.

WATER-METER COMMISSION.

The report of the Committee on the Judiciary (inexpedient to legislate), on an order (taken from the files of last year) relative to regulating the use of water meters by cities and towns was called up by Mr. Adams of Attleborough, and Mr. Farrell of Boston proceeded to advocate the substitute of the bill offered by him to provide for the appointment by the governor of a commission of three persons, who shall examine and test all water meters offered for public use.

Mr. Dwyer of Boston opposed the substitution of the bill, and said that if the city of Boston was compelled to put in meters for water for domestic use it would reduce the revenue and thereby raise the rates.

Messrs. Murphy and Leahy of Boston and Whipple of Brockton advocated the substitution of the bill, and Mr. Walker of Malden and Mr. Hartwell of Fitchburg opposed it. The latter gentleman said the whole pressure in favor of the bill seemed to come from renters of meters, and he thought the matter should be left to the authorities of each city or town to adopt meters or not as they should see fit. Mr. Dwyer of Boston opposed the bill, and it was favored by Mr. Logan of Lowell, who said the water takers had certain rights, and among them was the right to be protected from the arbitrary action of a water board. Mr. Chamberlain of Cambridge opposed the bill, because he desired the people of Boston to have all the water they wanted, and Mr. Hantout of Salem said he thought the bill ought to be carefully considered by the House. Mr. Beckford of Lynn opposed the bill, because it would compel the poorer people to pay more for their water. Mr. Dolan of Boston favored the bill, and after further debate it was substituted—83 to 81—and placed in the orders of the day.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

Tabled—Report of the Committee on the Judiciary (inexpedient to legislate), on an order relative to so amending chapter 209 of the Public Statutes relative to offences against public policy, as to provide that the provisions of said act shall not apply to the Grand Army or any charitable association, and petitions relative to the subject—Mr. Doherty of Boston dissenting.

Accepted—Report of the Committee on the Judiciary (inexpedient to legislate), on an order relative to providing by law some method by which the liability of the principals and sureties on a bond may be terminated in certain cases.

Postponed to Tuesday—Report of the Committee on Election Laws (inexpedient to legislate), on an order relative to making it obligatory upon every voter to vote at elections; bill to incorporate the Ayer Savings Bank.

Engrossed—Bill to establish the salary of the standing justice of the Municipal Court of the Brighton District of the city of Boston; bill to incorporate the "Nevins Memorial," a free public library, in the town of Methuen; resolve in favor of the town of Lexington; resolve providing for the printing of extra copies of the "Thirty-second Annual Report of the Secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Agriculture."

To the Editor of The Tribune.

SIR: Will you please tell me if the last novel published in THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE, "Proper Pride," will be published in THE DAILY EXTRA or pamphlet form? If so, I want it. It is, I think, the best novel yet published in your paper since I have read it, and I have read your paper for twelve years. Very respectfully yours,
W. H. FARRER.

New York, N. Y., May 1, 1894.

[This popular story has been republished as one of THE TRIBUNE Moral Extras, and will be sent postage paid to any address for ten cents. Judging from the numerous inquiries received about "Proper Pride" the sale promises to be unusually large.]
